SPREAD OF FREEDOM.

The obliteration of slavery in the United States will probably prove to be the forerunner of emancipation in all civilized countries where involuntary servitude is now a local institution. The wave of freedom which has swept over the United States already seems to have reached Cuba, and reports from that island indicate great commotion among the servile population. A number of plantations have already been devastated by incendiaries, and there is abundant evidence that an extensive conspiracy is on foot for a general uprising of the negroes. The utmost vigilance is observed by the authorities, but the plot is kept so secret that nothing outwardly appears, except the restiveness and dissatisfaction which the slaves make no attempt to conceal. This alarming condition of affairs is attributable solely to the emancipation of the negroes in the United States. The slaves upon the island now chafe under their shackles, knowing, as they do, that four millions of their countrymen have suddenly been lifted from bondage and invested with all the attributes of freedom. It is not presumable, of course, that a slave insurrection in Cuba would be successful in establishing freedom there by force of arms, but the effect of such an outbreak would, doubtless, occasion so much distrust and apprehension on the part of the whites as to result in a voluntary manumission of the slaves. The abolition of slavery by Great Britain, in its West India possessions, was attributable more to the danger of servile revolts than to the philanthropy of the British Government. The Spanish Government, in view of the threatening demonstrations in Cuba, may be constrained to adopt a similar policy. However this may be, the contagion of freedom has certainly reached the slaves of Cuba, and sooner or later slavery in that island must meet the same fate which the institution has received in this country.

OLD FORBES.—This able and really distinguished member of the Nevada press—and who is the "hymn Indian" of all the Humboldt country, in his last paper very strongly intimates that we have been on "the religious lay" lately, because we have advocated "a better observance of the Sabbath." He also expresses his opinion (rather freely, we think,) that we are in favor of "Sunday gardens, where a man can comfortably listen to the band while he is hoisting in his usual malt." Old Forbes (or as he was christened, "4-b"), is altogether mistaken. Although we confess to be somewhat religious, it has never struck in—not much. And as to his remark about "Sunday gardens, the music of the band, and the hoisting in of the usual malt," etc., and all that, we "don't see it in that light," and rather think 4-b is measuring us by his own yardstick.

A BLOODY ENCOUNTER.—Our fat reporter in Virginia and Ark., who does the locals of the Union, had a bloodless encounter in Virginia last night. The one had accused the other of having a "bus on his brain," (the last part of the accusation being harmless, as it was void of truth, no one else ever having even thought of his having any brains,) while Ark. was charged with having, what Samvel Welles warned Toney against—wider on the brain. Poor fellows! they fought furiously for a short time, and their weapons, barked with gore. Dan de Quille and old Boughton, and Ben. Luckey and Ben. Ballou were their seconds and thirds. The scene of the sanguinary encounter was on the "head of the knob" on Six-mile Canon. Both were killed, and are to be buried to-morrow. Six-mile Canon is in mourning.

ANOTHER SECRECY OFFICIAL.—We notice that one A. J. Labatt, of Austin, has been appointed a militia (staff) captain and U. S. Commissioner. Is this the A. J. Labatt who formerly published a digest of Supreme Court Decisions in San Francisco? If yes, then we have to remark that in 1861 he was an ardent Copperhead. We have been told that he rejoiced over the Union defeat at Bull Run; we know that after the news came from the wires of the disaster at Ball's Bluff, he exclaimed: "Thank God! one of those Mississippi riflemen put a bullet-hole in him" (meaning Col. Baker), or words to this precise effect. A beautiful kind he is. His appointment as staff captain was a most undeserved honor; his appointment as U. S. Commissioner is an infamous outrage. Who is responsible for it?

NEW PHRASE.—The people of Black Hawk, Colorado, have got a new phrase. A late Journal, after writing a whole column on a mining district there, the editor winds up with: "But seriously speaking, after the manner of Colfax." Pretty good. It is the latest phrase out; and yesterday spoke after that style to the Carson Appeal, when it sailed into Colonel Bee. As the Colfax phrase is now down in Carson, we hope to hear that the writer in the Appeal will make the amende honorable to Colonel Bee. (Wonder whether old Snarlogee didn't write the article?)

FLOUR DOWN AND UP.—The Stockton Independent anticipates a great fall in the price of flour, and says that if the speculators can run flour down to $4 and wheat to $1 per hundred, they will be able to buy in all the crop, and next winter run up prices again to starvation rates. We think this is their plan, and we warn the farmers to be in no haste in selling.

SICKNESS IN NEVADA CITY.—At this time, says the Nevada City Transcript, there is scarcely a family in this community whose children are not sick with a kind of influenza, which has prevailed for a week or more. There are also many cases of this unpleasant sickness among grown persons.

CALIFORNIA POLITICS.

As matters political have not commenced to boil in our State, preparatory to the Fall campaign—the waters being only warm at the present time—we may take advantage of our comparatively cool condition to glance dispassionately at the raging of the sea of political strife in our adjoining and elder State. We don't intend to meddle in our sister's affairs imperiously; we will not do that. We will merely make mention of the condition of things, and then let the subject fall to each reader's independent and, by us, at least, unbiased reflections and conclusions. We hope that we omit no bona fide candidate for U. S. Senatorial honors: Low, Sargent, Felton, Billings, Pixley, Shafter, Cole, and Phelps. It is asserted, and we believe generally conceded, that at present Low and Sargent have the most positive strength. The San Francisco delegation cannot be relied on as yet, for any one candidate of the number above mentioned. The Flag says that Low don't stand a ghost of chance at the Bay primaries, while Gorham and Carrington has the delegation "dead." Connors has just arrived, but has not announced his preference as between Low and Billings—one of whom will secure his aid. Sargent has carried his own and two or three adjacent counties, and his claims would seem to be favored by the Sacramento Union. It is understood that the Dutch Flat Wagon Road Company is in favor of Low. Billings would have been Congressman in place of McKuer, but for the mistransmission of a telegraphic dispatch sent by him from Vermont, in which he was made to say "am not and will not be a candidate." He was undoubtedly surprised by the news of his popularity in the nominating convention; and judges his chances for Senatorial good, on the strength of his unsought prospects of Congress, while he was absent from the field. Felton is a brother of C. C. Felton, the late distinguished Greek Professor, and afterwards President of Harvard College. He is the Attorney for the heavy French firms of San Francisco, and was deeply interested in, and an active agent of the Great Bulkhead Scheme which several years ago agitated the mass of Front street merchants who are not counted in the project. It will be recollected Connors voted for the Bulkhead Bill, thereby securing the support of Felton and Levi Parsons, and all the leading French capitalists. Felton is reported very wealthy, and he is certainly backed by immense power of money. We do not conceive it any violation of our preface to express the opinion that Pixley played himself out in the Salvador pirate case. He is a most erratic cuss; and his political affiliations cannot be depended on from one day to another. Frank appears to be as dead as his mule. We have not heard where Shafter expected his strength to come from; but presume that the field-hands on his large Bodego potato patch, will send one or two Representatives inclined to vote for him, if he has any other support. Shafter was once President of the California Senate; acting in that capacity during the Williams impeachment trial, when C. H. S. Williams gave him a terrible scoring for his conduct and testimony. Phelps has been a candidate before the "wardrobe scene" calls his name to memory. We thought, until somewhat recently, that he was a citizen of Austin in this State. Phelps would naturally leave the People's Party support in San Francisco; but it is claimed that Low has secured all that, by contributing to the last successful squeeze-in of the People's candidates at the municipal election. Cole has just returned from Washington, and is just out of his Congressional term of office. We cannot forbear saying that we regard him as a most excellent man, and know him to have been a most faithful and efficient representative. There is no clap-trap about Cole; he is a sound, substantial character. He was very highly esteemed by the chief authorities at Washington. Correspondents from the Bay to interior papers say that Cole has decided strength in the city, and appears to be gathering force all over the country.

THE SAME THING WITH A DIFFERENCE.

Jeff. Davis is evidently a man of versatility. It will be remembered that he stated in a speech, made shortly after his election as President, C. S. A., that he would be long be an occupant of the White House, in Washington. The story was current at that time that he had retained and paid in advance for his former church pew, feeling confident that he would soon resume his devotions there, with Washington as the capital of the Confederacy. Jeff's promise has been long delayed, by certain unforeseen contingencies, but it is now announced that he is en route for the capital, and the promise, so far as his going to Washington is concerned, will therefore be fulfilled. Four years have made great changes in the "city of magnificent distances," and it may be that the "gentleman from Mississippi," as he used to be called by his brother Senators, will not find the accommodations quite up to his aristocratic notions of elegance. He may think, on being introduced to the apartments provided for him, that there is too little of luxury and too much of durability about them, to please his fancy. But he will probably have no cause to complain of the attention paid him. He will find that there is quite as much solicitude manifested towards him as he could desire, and, perhaps, more than a gentleman of his modesty will appreciate. A man of his position, however, must expect to submit to some annoyance of this kind. He must make up his mind to be courted, as great men often are, and to take a high position at the National Capital—not so high, perhaps, as that which Haman once occupied, but quite high enough for his aspiration.

SHERMAN A "GOAKER."

It is said that the only joke General Sherman ever perpetrated—if we except the one in his last letter to Halleck—was upon entering the capital of North Carolina. Turning to a regiment of veterans who were marching by the State House, he called out: "don't you think this a good place to sing 'Patrician round the flag, boys?'"

Patrician round the flag, boys?

—Rat-rat-tat-tat!—The sprig of shillelagh may it ever flourish.

THE GREAT TUNNEL.

The great tunnel project of Mr. Sutro, we learn, has a fair prospect of being carried out. Some seventeen of the capitalists of San Francisco and Nevada, who are deeply interested in the development of the Comstock ledge, have already taken heavy interests in the enterprise, and it is now assuming the character of an undertaking which is to be carried out. The necessity of such a great work is evident. The cost of freeing our mines from water is already enormous, and is increasing with every foot of depth which is acquired below the present level; and yet, we are only comparatively a short way down. Unless some such drainage as that proposed by Mr. Sutro is provided, our mines will have to be shut up after they have been worked down 800 or 1,000 feet further, if not before. With such a work as he proposes to construct, completed, the mines on the Comstock ledge can be nearly as easily worked to that depth below the level of the tunnel, as they can be worked from the surface without it, in all not far from 3,100 feet. In fact, the only question which is to be settled is whether 1,800 feet in depth of the Comstock ledge will pay for constructing a tunnel about four miles long—a question which we apprehend few would hesitate about answering in the affirmative. Last winter Mr. Sutro published a pamphlet showing some of the advantages and necessities of a deep drain tunnel for the Comstock ledge, in which he makes some calculations which show the great expense which would be avoided by the construction of such a work. The estimate which he makes of the water which would have to be drained from the ledge at the depth of 1,800 feet—the level of the tunnel—is 78,900 cubic feet per hour; and by a calculation based upon the cost of pumping from the Best & Belcher mine, (which cost was accurately determined by Capt. Taylor when he was Superintendent there), he finds that it would cost $15,306 per day, or $5,600,232 per annum, to pump the water to the surface. With the tunnel once constructed, the expense of keeping it in order would be light. In fact, it is reasonably supposed that the value of it would give in working the ledge, would much more than pay for keeping it in repair. It would save them, in draining alone, the enormous sum of $5,600,232 per annum. It is estimated that it will require about four years time to run a tunnel from the Carson Valley to the Comstock ledge, the distance from the point at which it is proposed to start it, to the ledge being about four miles, and the depth attained at the ledge being 1,800 feet. No one who is directly or indirectly interested in the successful working of the Gold Hill and Virginia mines, can have other than a lively interest in this great enterprise; and none who wish future success in this country but who must wish success in this undertaking, for their welfare is inseparably linked together.

JEFF. IN IRONS.

The latest printed accounts from the East state that Jeff. Davis is in irons, in his cell. The work of putting manacles on the arch-traitor was done on the 26th of May; and seems to have been quite a job, as he became "irritated," and, as Mrs. Davis predicted, he "hurt" some body—but the hurt didn't amount to much. Whilst our soldiers were attempting to manacle him he struck one of the men, and endeavored to get a bayonet from the guard, as he was supplied with suicidal purpose. He was finally thrown down on the bed in his cell, and the irons closely riveted to both ankles. "Alas, poor Yorick!" The poorest and blackest slave in the whole South is to-day better off, is held in better estimate among honest and loyal people, than is "the gentleman from Mississippi." But his next reward, a HEMLOCK ONE, for his foul treason and ingratitude to the country of his birth, is yet to come. After which, the very gates of hell will be swung back, and creaking upon their black hinges, will, after Jeff. Davis has entered upon his eternal doom, make such rumbling and fearful noises throughout the whole of the eternal creation, that man will stand appalled at the vengeance which God inflicts upon traitors to their country. The hideous skeletons of the tens of thousands of our murdered and starved countrymen will haunt Jeff. Davis in his cell before his awful doom is meted out to him; and however supplicating and tearfully he may appeal to Almighty God, his sins are so many and damnable, that even the Great Eternal will refuse to hearken unto him, and his sun will turn into darkness and his moon into blood. "VENGEANCE IS MINE," saith the Lord!

OUR GOLD HILL NEIGHBOR.

The Gold Hill News of last evening takes us gently to task for having scooped at the doings of Mr. Bee. The editor of that very excellent paper cuts it rather fat in his allusions to the editor of this very humble and diffident journal. We beg to offer him the assurances of our most distinguished consideration, trusting that he may never have occasion to change his estimate of our military, professional and personal character. If we did Mr. Bee an injustice by our remarks, we take it all back. We really thought that Mr. Bee was meddling with something that was none of his business, or we should not have said what we did.—Carson Appeal of this morning.

THE ABOVE EXPLANATION IS CERTAINLY SATISFACTORY TO US, AND WE EXPECT IT IS TO COL. BEE.

We believed the Appeal to be unintentionally wrong in the first instance—as it certainly was. All is sunshine now; but sometimes men will dabble in moonshine.

NOMINATIONS IN PLACER COUNTY.

SALT LAKE DISPATCH.

Wires Still Down—Colonel George Repairing It.

SALT LAKE, June 29—2 P. M.

There is no telegraphic communication beyond the Sweetwater.
Col. George is at Fort Bridger, and although the break is beyond the limits of his district, will go at once with a cavalry detachment to repair the wire and drive off the Indians. It may, however, be reached from the East before his arrival.

THE WATER SUPPLY OF LONDON.

A London weekly paper says: "Three of the great water companies extend their suction pipes of supply—their chylæ, as it were, sucking at the stream through miles of iron pipe, the end of which dips into the Thames close to Wolsey's pleasant palace. The great mains of all the companies are thirty-six inches in diameter, and it must be remembered they are free and fully charged at all times, in case of fire, the fireman has only to turn the plug to get any quantity of water he requires. In some cases—as at the great fire in Tooley street—thousands of tons of water are thus abstracted gratuitously without interfering with the supply to the houses. At the beginning of the present century the main arteries of the pipes were wooden—the trunks of trees bored out—and in no case of more than one foot in diameter. How the metropolitan giant must have grown, the size of his present iron arteries is a proof. The mains of eight water companies not only supply London properly, but pump out far into the country, invading even the agricultural districts, and supplying its farms. They distribute in the aggregate upward of 100,000,000 of gallons daily, through 3,000 and odd miles of main, and supply 375,000 houses and factories, through capillary pipes upward of 7,000 miles in length. If all the water daily used in this great city were collected in one great reservoir, it would cover seventy acres in extent and six feet in depth. As the spectator watched this great expanse of water, he would see it hour by hour drained to the bottom by the collective millions in the metropolis as calmly and noiselessly as a cup is drained by a dusty roadside steamer. The collective iron heart, the steam engines which propel this flood, possesses a force of not less than 2,600 horses."

THE RAGE FOR ASSASSINATION IN THE SOUTH.

Booth's example seems to have been imitated in the South quite extensively. There is some doubt about the violent death of Gen. Forrest, though he richly deserved it. He murdered many men with his own hand, and was really responsible for the Fort Pillow massacre. Now another rebel has fallen. A late copy of the Galveston News tells us of the assassination of Gen. T. J. Chalmers. It says of him:

"This old and distinguished citizen of Texas was assassinated in his bedroom, at his residence, in Chambers county, on the night of the 16th of March, in the presence of his wife and children, by being shot in the right side of the head with a twenty-nine shot of different sizes. He died instantly."

Added to this, it is reported Jeff. Davis had to give up his specie to his followers to avoid assassination, and on the top of all we have a report of the death of Kirby Smith.

A FRENCH BOASTER IN GUAYMAS.

An American has been relating the atrocity of the French officers in Mexico, and how they are sometimes "not back" by our shame-witted countrymen. A short time ago a French officer was playing at billiards in a public saloon where there were several Americans. The Frenchman was very boastful; he said when the Mexicans were whipped in the country around Guaymas, he intended to march an army of thirty thousand into California and take it! "Yes?" inquiringly responded an American. "And if I would," continued the Frenchman, "I could march through Texas and go right through the United States." "You could," said the American encouragingly, "you could march into Texas and then they'd take you right through the country all the way by railroad to Fort Lafayette, and it wouldn't cost you a cent! Try it, old fellow, you'll have a good time!" The Frenchman saw from the smiles which pervaded the room, that something was understood which he did not comprehend, and retreated in bad order.

ROBERT E. LEE, EDUCATED AS A SOLDIER AT THE EXPENSE OF THE PUBLIC, TO FIGHT THE BATTLES OF THE UNION, BUT WHOSE SWORD IS YET DRIPPING WITH THE BLOOD OF UNION MEN, IS NOW FED, WITH HIS ENTIRE FAMILY, BY RATIONS DRAWN FROM UNITED STATES COMMISSARY STORES AT RICHMOND. IF TRAITORS TO THE FED BY THE GOVERNMENT, THEY SHOULD AT LEAST BE COMPELLED TO EAT WHAT THEY EAT, AND THEREFORE WE HOPE THE AUTHORITIES WILL SOON FIND SOME USEFUL EMPLOYMENT FOR THESE INGRATES.

TO CLAM CANARY BIRDS.—These pretty little things are, like meander objects, often covered with vermin, and may be effectively relieved of them by placing a clean white cloth over their cage at night. In the morning it will be covered with small red spots, as small as hardly to be seen, except by the aid of a glass. These are the vermin, a source of great annoyance to the birds.

A CHINESEMAN COMMITTED SUICIDE ON BALD MOUNTAIN LAST WEEK BY STABBING HIMSELF TWICE, AND THEN COMPLETING THE JOB BY JUMPING INTO A RESERVOIR AND DROWNING HIMSELF. HE HAD A HUGE DISGUIST UPON HIM.

A Mistaken Estimate.

The Marysville Appeal, of the 25th instant contains an article headed, "The effects of the war on the education of the South," in which we find the following paragraph, to which we take exception: "The aristocracy of the South—the sons and daughters of slave holders—have been as well or better educated than the first classes of the North."

The Appeal, generally correct in its deductions, never committed a greater error as ignorant as they are haughty and arrogant. Indeed, there is no class of young men and women anywhere in America so given to vulgar pride as those of the self-constituted aristocracy of the Slave States. And vulgar pride and thorough education are altogether incompatible one with another. The better class of wealthy Southern gentlemen themselves are to a showy breeding that is calculated to deceive, and writing or within the sacred bounds of the home circle. These glib talkers are rarely earnest people. They practice their colloquial arts for the effect they may have. They excel the Northerners in this acquirement, which is too much neglected in the training of children in the Free States. But it is a great mistake to suppose any one class of the Southern better educated—according to our construction of that word—than "the first class of the North." For no people are more thorough scholars than some of the distinguished men of New England and the Middle States. Who Southerner ever arrived at such vast scholastic attainments as Edward Everett? Who among the South will you find a Bancroft, a Holmes, a Sumner, or a Felton? That man who is a great man, Wendell Phillips is deeper versed in all that pertains to "education" than any man that ever did live in the South, and there are few men in the North now living, or who have lived, that are or were his equals. Perhaps Theodore Parker in his day was the greatest scholar in the North. The uneducated has appointed SAMUEL BRANNAN, Esq., of the City of San Francisco, his Attorney, and given him authority to transact all business relative to these Bonds, in his name.
